Issues in Applied Linguistics Now Published in eScholarship
Graduate student–run journal presents work on language and education eScholarship is pleased to announce the publication of volume 17, issues 1 & 2 of UCLA’s Issues in Applied Linguistics (http://escholarship.org/uc/appling_ial). Initially launched in 1989 as a print-only journal, this volume marks the journal’s first digital publication.

Issues in Applied Linguistics aims to publish “outstanding research from students, faculty, and independent researchers in the broad areas of discourse analysis, sociolinguistics, language acquisition, language analysis, language assessment, language education, language use, and research methodology.” It is published under the aegis of the UCLA Department of Applied Linguistics and is edited by the department’s graduate students.

eScholarship (http://escholarship.org/) provides open access, scholarly digital publishing services to the University of California and delivers a dynamic research platform to scholars worldwide.
