3-year PhD assistantship in plant evolution and biogeography
University of Zurich, Switzerland

Origin and evolution of island endemics in the Mediterranean Region. Our first studies on Rutaceae, Araceae and Boraginaceae used chloroplast DNA sequences and geological data to reconstruct the temporal and spatial frameworks for the origin of plants endemic to the continental fragment islands of Corsica and Sardinia and the oceanic islands of the Canarian archipelago. Some of the open questions include: i) Are species in the selected Mediterranean groups monophyletic? ii) What are the origins of the polyploid species? iii) Is there variation of ploidy levels within species? iv) Was island colonization associated with a shift of the ecological niche? The successful applicant will choose one or more of these plant families to: generate flow cytometry data aimed at determining ploidy levels; generate nuclear DNA sequences and infer species trees; incorporate ecological data to investigate issues of niche conservatism vs. niche evolution in the selected groups.

Experience in molecular, phylogenetic and flow-cytometry methods and/or ecological niche modeling will be highly valued in the selection process. Excellent knowledge of the English language, written and oral, required. Familiarity with additional European languages (especially Spanish) would be useful for fieldwork in the Mediterranean Region. The position will be open until a suitable candidate is selected, with starting date no later than February 1, 2011. For full job description, please contact Prof. Elena Conti (ContiElena@access.uzh.ch), Dr. Barbara Keller (barbara.keller@systbot.uzh.ch) or Frau Corinne Burlet (corinne.burlet@systbot.uzh.ch).
