PUBLICATION NUMBER 5:

ETHNOGEOGRAPHY OF THE PLAINS MIWOK

BY JAMES A. BENNYHOFF

THIS MONOGRAPH DESCRIBES AND DEMARCATES LATE PREHISTORIC AND EARLY HISTORIC TERRITORIAL BOUNDARIES OF THE PLAINS MIWOK AND ADJACENT GROUPS WHO ONCE RESIDED IN THE SACRAMENTO DELTA AREA OF CENTRAL CALIFORNIA. THROUGH METICULOUS ANALYSIS OF EARLY EXPLORATION DIARIES, SPANISH MISSION RECORDS AND MAPS, THE SUTTER DOCUMENTS, REMINISCENCES, AND ETHNOGRAPHIC, LINGUISTIC AND ARCHAEOLOGICAL INFORMATION, THE AUTHOR PROPOSES THE FORMER EXISTENCE OF 28 INDEPENDENT PLAINS MIWOK TRIBELETS AS OF A.D. 1800. CAREFUL EXAMINATION OF THE ARCHAEOLOGICAL RECORD FURTHER SUGGESTED THAT LINGUISTIC BOUNDARIES COULD BE DRAWN WHICH COINCIDES WITH CULTURALLY DEFINED ARCHAEOLOGICAL DISTRICTS.

THE VOLUME CONTAINS SEVEN CHAPTERS: INTRODUCTION, GEOGRAPHIC SETTING, PLAINS MIWOK CULTURE, ETHNOGEOGRAPHY: PROBLEMS AND SOURCES, TRIBELETS AND VILLAGES, LINGUISTIC BOUNDARIES, AND CONCLUSIONS. ALSO INCLUDED ARE MAPS SHOWING PLAINS MIWOK BOUNDARIES AND SETTLEMENTS AS PLACED BY THE AUTHOR AND BY AN EARLY SPANISH EXPLORER IN 1824.

AN ESSENTIAL ADDITION TO THE LIBRARY OF THE ANTHROPOLOGIST, ARCHAEOLOGIST, HISTORIAN, LINGUIST, OR ANYONE INTERESTED IN THE LATE PREHISTORY AND EARLY HISTORY OF CENTRAL CALIFORNIA.

the final report on

NEWBERRY CAVE

by
C. Alan Davis and Gerald A. Smith

113 pages, 35 figures, 2 tables

Newberry Cave presents a complete analysis of the archaeological assemblage from one of the most important cave sites ever investigated in the arid West. The assemblage includes abundant atlatl dart shaft fragments, projectile points, and split-twig figurines and fragments, and is firmly dated by radiocarbon to the middle of the second millennium B.C. The assemblage is interpreted to represent the activities of a hunters' society whose uniquely fashioned animal figurines find their known parallels only in Utah, Nevada, and Arizona. The report will be valued by all archaeologists interested in California Desert and Great Basin prehistory.

Copies may be purchased for $8.00 over-the-counter at the San Bernardino County Museum. Mail orders received prior to February 1, 1982, will be filled at the prepublication price of $6.00. All mail order requests must be paid in advance and must include an additional $1.00 for postage and handling. Orders for this significant new contribution to Great Basin literature should be directed to:
