Technology Grant News at <http://www.technologygrantnews.com>

"It is a publication that comes to you four times a year with the latest grant announcements for technology and other initiatives by technology funders, government and trade associations - for nonprofits, social service providers, towns and cities and schools and universities. It is not free. The layout is nice, easy, readable. Useful, thought provoking - it puts technology funder funding for a variety of initiatives and sectors - in ways that are easily readable and catalytic. One can try to leverage the programs, achievement or models covered to whomever might be eligible. There are grants here by technology funders for education, literacy, digital divide, community, teaching the math and science of technology, steppingstones to technology for children with disabilities, women and economic development, environment, conservation, on-line art and exhibitions, digital libraries, and partnerships funding, etc. At the site, you can subscribe on-line. The publication saves scouting individual Web sites." From: Jessica Callender, IT Planner & Grant Writer JessicaCallender@worldnet.att.net
