and the

*Language, Interaction and Social Organization
Graduate Student Organization at UCSB
(LISO at UCSB)*

Crossroads of Language, Interaction and Culture is a double-blind, peer-reviewed graduate student journal in which selected CLIC-LISO conference proceedings are published. It promotes interdisciplinary research on the intersection of language, culture and conversational activities.

The views expressed in this journal are not necessarily those of the editorial team or contributors, CLIC GSA at UCLA, LISO at UCSB, the UCLA Center for Language, Interaction and Culture (UCLA CLIC) or the Regents of the University of California. Funding for Crossroads is provided by the UCLA Graduate Student Association (UCLA GSA).

Articles from Crossroads are available online, for free through e-scholarship at http://www.escholarship.org/uc/clic_crossroads and UCLA CLIC at <http://www.humnet.ucla.edu/humnet/al/clic/journal/>. Print-on-demand journal copies from volume 8 going forward are available for a fee through the University of California Press at <http://www.ucpress.edu/series.php?ser=pubsclic>. Arrangements for the purchase of print copies prior to 2011 can be made by sending an email to clicgsa@humnet.ucla.edu.

Crossroads is a copyrighted compilation, and all rights are reserved worldwide. It is distributed in association with the University of California Press. Permission to reprint or use an individual article in this volume should be directed to the author of the article. Permission to reprint or use full issues of this journal should be sent to clicgsa@humnet.ucla.edu. For more information about the journal or to submit an article from a CLIC-LISO conference, please go to http://www.escholarship.org/uc/clic_crossroads.
