Awake 3.0 is an interpretation of the limits between the conscious and the unconscious, an exploration of the transitional moment where the state of being alert is lost. I began to sketch this piece in Finland, inspired by the long winter nights I spent composing and resisting the dozing temptation. After briefly setting it aside, I finalized it in New York. Its departing point is the hypnotic imagery of flickering lights reflected off frozen surfaces in the darkness.

The first version of Awake was for flute, clarinet, violin, violoncello and percussion. Later on, I created a slightly longer version for 15 musicians. The present version replaces percussion with piano and was created for the Moscow Contemporary Music Ensemble residency at UCLA in February-March 2018.

Tomàs Peire Serrate was born in Barcelona. He studied piano at the Sant Cugat del Vallès conservatory and History at the Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona. After a few years performing and teaching he decided to focus on composition, first studying at the Escola Superior de Música de Catalunya (Barcelona) and in 2009 at the Sibelius Academy of Helsinki. In 2011 he moved to New York with the La Caixa Fellowship to pursue a Master’s in Film Scoring at the New York University. After graduating in 2013 and obtaining the Elmer Bernstein Award, Tomàs moved to Los Angeles to explore the film music industry and to work as a composer and orchestrator. In the fall of 2015, Tomàs initiated his PhD studies at UCLA, researching about music, space and media, with particular interest in new technologies and virtual reality. His music has been performed in Europe, the US and Asia. http://www.tomaspeire.com

The UCLA Music Library provides access to one of the largest academic music collections in North America and the largest in Southern California. It supports the UCLA Herb Alpert School of Music, music and audio courses and research at UCLA, and the music communities at UCLA and in Southern California. Hugo Davise was born Hugh Edward Davies in 1907. A lifelong Angeleno, Davise worked for the Department of Agriculture during World War II. After the war, he earned his doctorate in philosophy at UCLA, and spent much of his career teaching at Santa Monica College and Los Angeles City College. His devotion to music was unwavering, yet private. He studied and composed in the most significant styles of the twentieth century, producing atonal, polytonal and modal works, and developing his own compositional system in response to that of Arnold Schoenberg.

Davise taught music privately into his late eighties. His students learned strict counterpoint, composition, and music history. Although he wrote in multiple genres, the bulk of his music is for solo piano, his own instrument. Thanks to his bequest to the UCLA Music Library, copies of Davise’s scores are available in the UCLA Library Special Collections. Davise died in 2000, but his legacy continues through the UCLA Music Library, Hugo Davise Fund for Contemporary Music and the Contemporary Score Edition series. http://www.library.ucla.edu/music/hugo-davise-fund-contemporary-music
