ABOUT THE UCLA CRIMINAL JUSTICE LAW REVIEW

The UCLA Criminal Justice Law Review (CJLR) focuses on current topics in criminal law, policy, and practice. CJLR seeks to develop a discourse regarding criminal justice by publishing articles, editorials, and interviews of practitioners, academics, and policymakers. CJLR also aims to foster a community by hosting an annual symposium for students, academics, practitioners, policymakers, and judges to come together to discuss current criminal justice issues.

CJLR is committed to the accessibility of its materials by making all publications available online for free. The CJLR editorial board is composed of students from UCLA School of Law and functions with the support of the UCLA School of Law faculty and administration.

This year, CJLR partnered with the Criminal Justice Policy Program at Harvard Law School to publish works from the Progressing Reform of Fees and Fines conference, highlighting the role of fines and fees in the criminal legal system.
