On page 43/0471b there is a typed word that is cut at the top. Then there is a typed passage that is somewhat difficult to make out, given here as far as possible: "Estoi persuadido que estas apuniaciones no llegan á ser aun partes de obra que meresca nombre, aunque yo le llamo Arroyuelo de Espresiones de Indies Sanjuaneros; tiene y debe tener muchos errores, y desonidos, muchos defectos, porque todo lo he aprendido de los que no saben oast(?)illa, y lo que sé (que es bien poco) de los que yo mismo he enseado á leer, lo tengo por mas dudoso y defectuoso. Para quitar la confusion, si se puede quitar, he extructado todas las expresiones por órden Alfabético no riguroso sino como en el Arque(?)tipon á original se siguen." This page has Isabel notes. On page 43/0472a H notes "Never say sanjuaneros, not a word." This page is stamped Sep 14 1929 & Jan 3 1930. Page 43/0472b has the following typed "Miscellaneous Notes. The following miscellaneous notes are related to various numbered entried in Arroyo de la Cuesta's Vocabulario Mutsun."

Reel 58

Content: 1353 entries. Some entries are repeated from elsewhere in this chapter or other chapters. Includes Harrington's partial rehearing of Arroyo's Grammatica and a few Mutsun language entries from Harrington's "San Juan Report".

Entries 1261-1310 contain a lengthy discussion of traditional practices using tobacco. Most of this seems to be fluent connected speech, not word-by-word elicitation of specific words. Entries 597-607 contain a full Mutsun translation of the Lord's Prayer. The rest of this chapter contains many various words, phrases, and activities; short possessive phrases (his/her___); words for wounds and illnesses; descriptive phrases concerning people; numbers and count nouns; many short command phrases (imperatives) and statements (declaratives); several phrases about giving and getting things; terms related to time or daytime; seasons; many question phrases (interrogatives); locations related to how close or far something is; phrases related to arriving and leaving, and coming and going; some phrases related to birthing; religious terms and prayers; types of baskets; some profanities.

Research notes: It is noted "[Merriam, letter, Jan. 13, 1930]." This entry is typed. On the next page is the English version "The blackberrying basket which Dona Ascension made and which we sent to Washington had its hoop made of willow and the rest was mde (sic) of tule. The handle was made of twisted tule. The blackberries did not fall out because they put tulito or sycamore leaves inside like a lining. Dona Ascension says that they made these baskets of tule or of cut grass." saawaya assumed for original saawiya because of connection to Merriam and because of his likely transcription.

Content: 455 entries. Harrington's own work on Mutsun, not rehearings of other language materials.

Terms for family members and relationships (kinship terms) in entries 1-216; entries 217-250 contain the Mutsun version of the first part of the story of One-Leg (the only traditional story recorded in Mutsun). Entries 253-346 contain place names reheard from Merriam's list of place names, and 380-415 contain mostly more place names, probably also rehearing of Merriam's list. Entries 347-368 mostly contain words relating to doctoring and traditional culture, as well as locations of the heavens and earth. Entries 369-377 contain protected cultural material that has been removed from the public version of the collection. Entries 416 to the end are mostly individual words about plants and animals, as well as some words for culturally important things or people.

Entries 369-377 have been omitted from this document to keep some cultural content private. The complete version that contains this material is available to Community members.

Page numbers: For Entries 1-216, add 11 to the page number listed after "Source" to get the online Smithsonian page numbers. For entries 217-365, add 12. For entries from 366 to the end, add 13.

Research notes: rootes has dotted underline and is marked "suggested by me." Number 1 in a circle in upper right corner of page. Beginning of One-leg (hemec'a wak-koro) story. Most of the story has no translation interleaved, but transation is available in English and Spanish on preceding pages, along with comments by Izabel and others. Sentence boundaries are usually unclear, and are determined here by syntax. There are also many marks that could be hyphens or punctuation, but may more likely be microfilm scratches.
