ABOUT THE UCLA CRIMINAL JUSTICE LAW REVIEW

The UCLA Criminal Justice Law Review (CJLR) focuses on current topics in criminal law, policy, and practice. CJLR seeks to develop a discourse regarding criminal justice by publishing articles, editorials, and interviews of practitioners, academics, and policymakers.

CJLR also works to foster community and highlight new perspectives on criminal justice by hosting a regular symposium for students, academics, practitioners, policymakers, and judges. In 2022, CJLR was proud to host a symposium in partnership with Giffords Law Center to Prevent Gun Violence entitled “Guns Everywhere: Individual Rights and Communal Harms after NYSRPA v. Bruen.” The Symposium brought together scholars, community activists, practitioners and leaders in the field to discuss the landmark Supreme Court decision on the Second Amendment. The five panels included dynamic conversations on Non-Carceral Solutions to Gun Violence: A Focus on Community Violence Intervention, The History of the Second Amendment: How We Got to Bruen—and Where We Go from Here, Police Violence and Public Safety in a World of Concealed Carry, Different Enforcement and Disparate Impacts of Gun Laws, and Guns at Poll-Booths and Protests: the Chilling Effect on First Amendment Activities and Against Criminal Justice Reform. CJLR is pleased to include excerpts from the five panels in Volume 7, and the full Symposium recording can be found online at <https://www.youtube.com/playlist?list=PLOkHWP6bM5o1ax4TwV6AuxJ1BfyIx-GTs>.

CJLR is committed to the accessibility of its materials by making all publications available online for free. The CJLR editorial board is composed of students from UCLA School of Law and functions with the support of the UCLA School of Law faculty and administration.
